GEOGRAPHY

Tanzania

QUICK FACTS

Tanzania

Top destinations:

Tarangire National Park
Nyerere National Park
Serengeti National Park
Ngorongoro Crater

When to go:

There's no bad time to go, but peak season is June through October, when Migration river crossings are most likely. Tanzania's 'green season', between November and March, is much quieter, wet, but can witness new babies being born. Rains are heaviest in April and May.

TOP ACCOMMODATIONS: SERENGETI REGION

About the area:

Serengeti National Park is a national park and wildlife refuge on the Serengeti Plain in north-central Tanzania. It is partly adjacent to the Kenya border and is northwest of the adjoining Ngorongoro Conservation Area. It is best known for its huge herds of plains animals and it is the only place in Africa where vast land-animal migrations still take place.

The park, an international tourist attraction, was added to the UNESCO World Heritage List in 1981.

About the area:

Arusha National Park is located in the northern part of Tanzania not too far south from the border of Kenya and just outside the city of Arusha. The national park encompasses an area of 53 square miles making it one of the smaller national parks of both Tanzania and the continent of Africa.

At just over 200 square miles, Arusha National Park has great wildlife densities, and it is home to the world's largest population of giraffe. Cape buffalo, elephants, hippos, zebra are found here in abundance, and the occasional lion and leopard can also be sighted on a game drive.
